Add a Little Color

TIRED OF NEUTRAL EVERYTHING BUT DON'T WANT TO GO TOO WILD? EXPERTS SHARE THEIR FAVORITE SURPRISE SPOTS TO PUT A SPLASH OF PAINT.

By Stephanie Sisco

If you're a fan of vibrant color but still recovering from a regretful choice to paint your entire college living room turquoise, this story is for you. Consider adding an unexpected accent shade to the interior of a cabinet (seen here), along your staircase risers, or on a piece of furniture. "Choose a color that relates to something else in the room and fits in with the style of the space," says Patrick Sutton, an interior designer in Baltimore. Here, he went with a bold orange tone that complements the warm wood of the cabinetry.
